DEEP IN THE HEART OF

I Braniffed to Dallas.
First class seemed full of Chanel No. 5
Saint Laurents, all coiffed Anne Miller look-alikes.
The heart of Texas is full of hot hair. I tiptoed from Texarkana to Waxahachie where I took a left turn towards downtown Waco. There
I wacked off on my way to San Antonio.

Did you know that Austin has the complete collection of the Reverend Charles Lutwidge Dodgson's oeuvre including The Rabbit Hole. Next I pirouetted to Houston, snapping all the way.

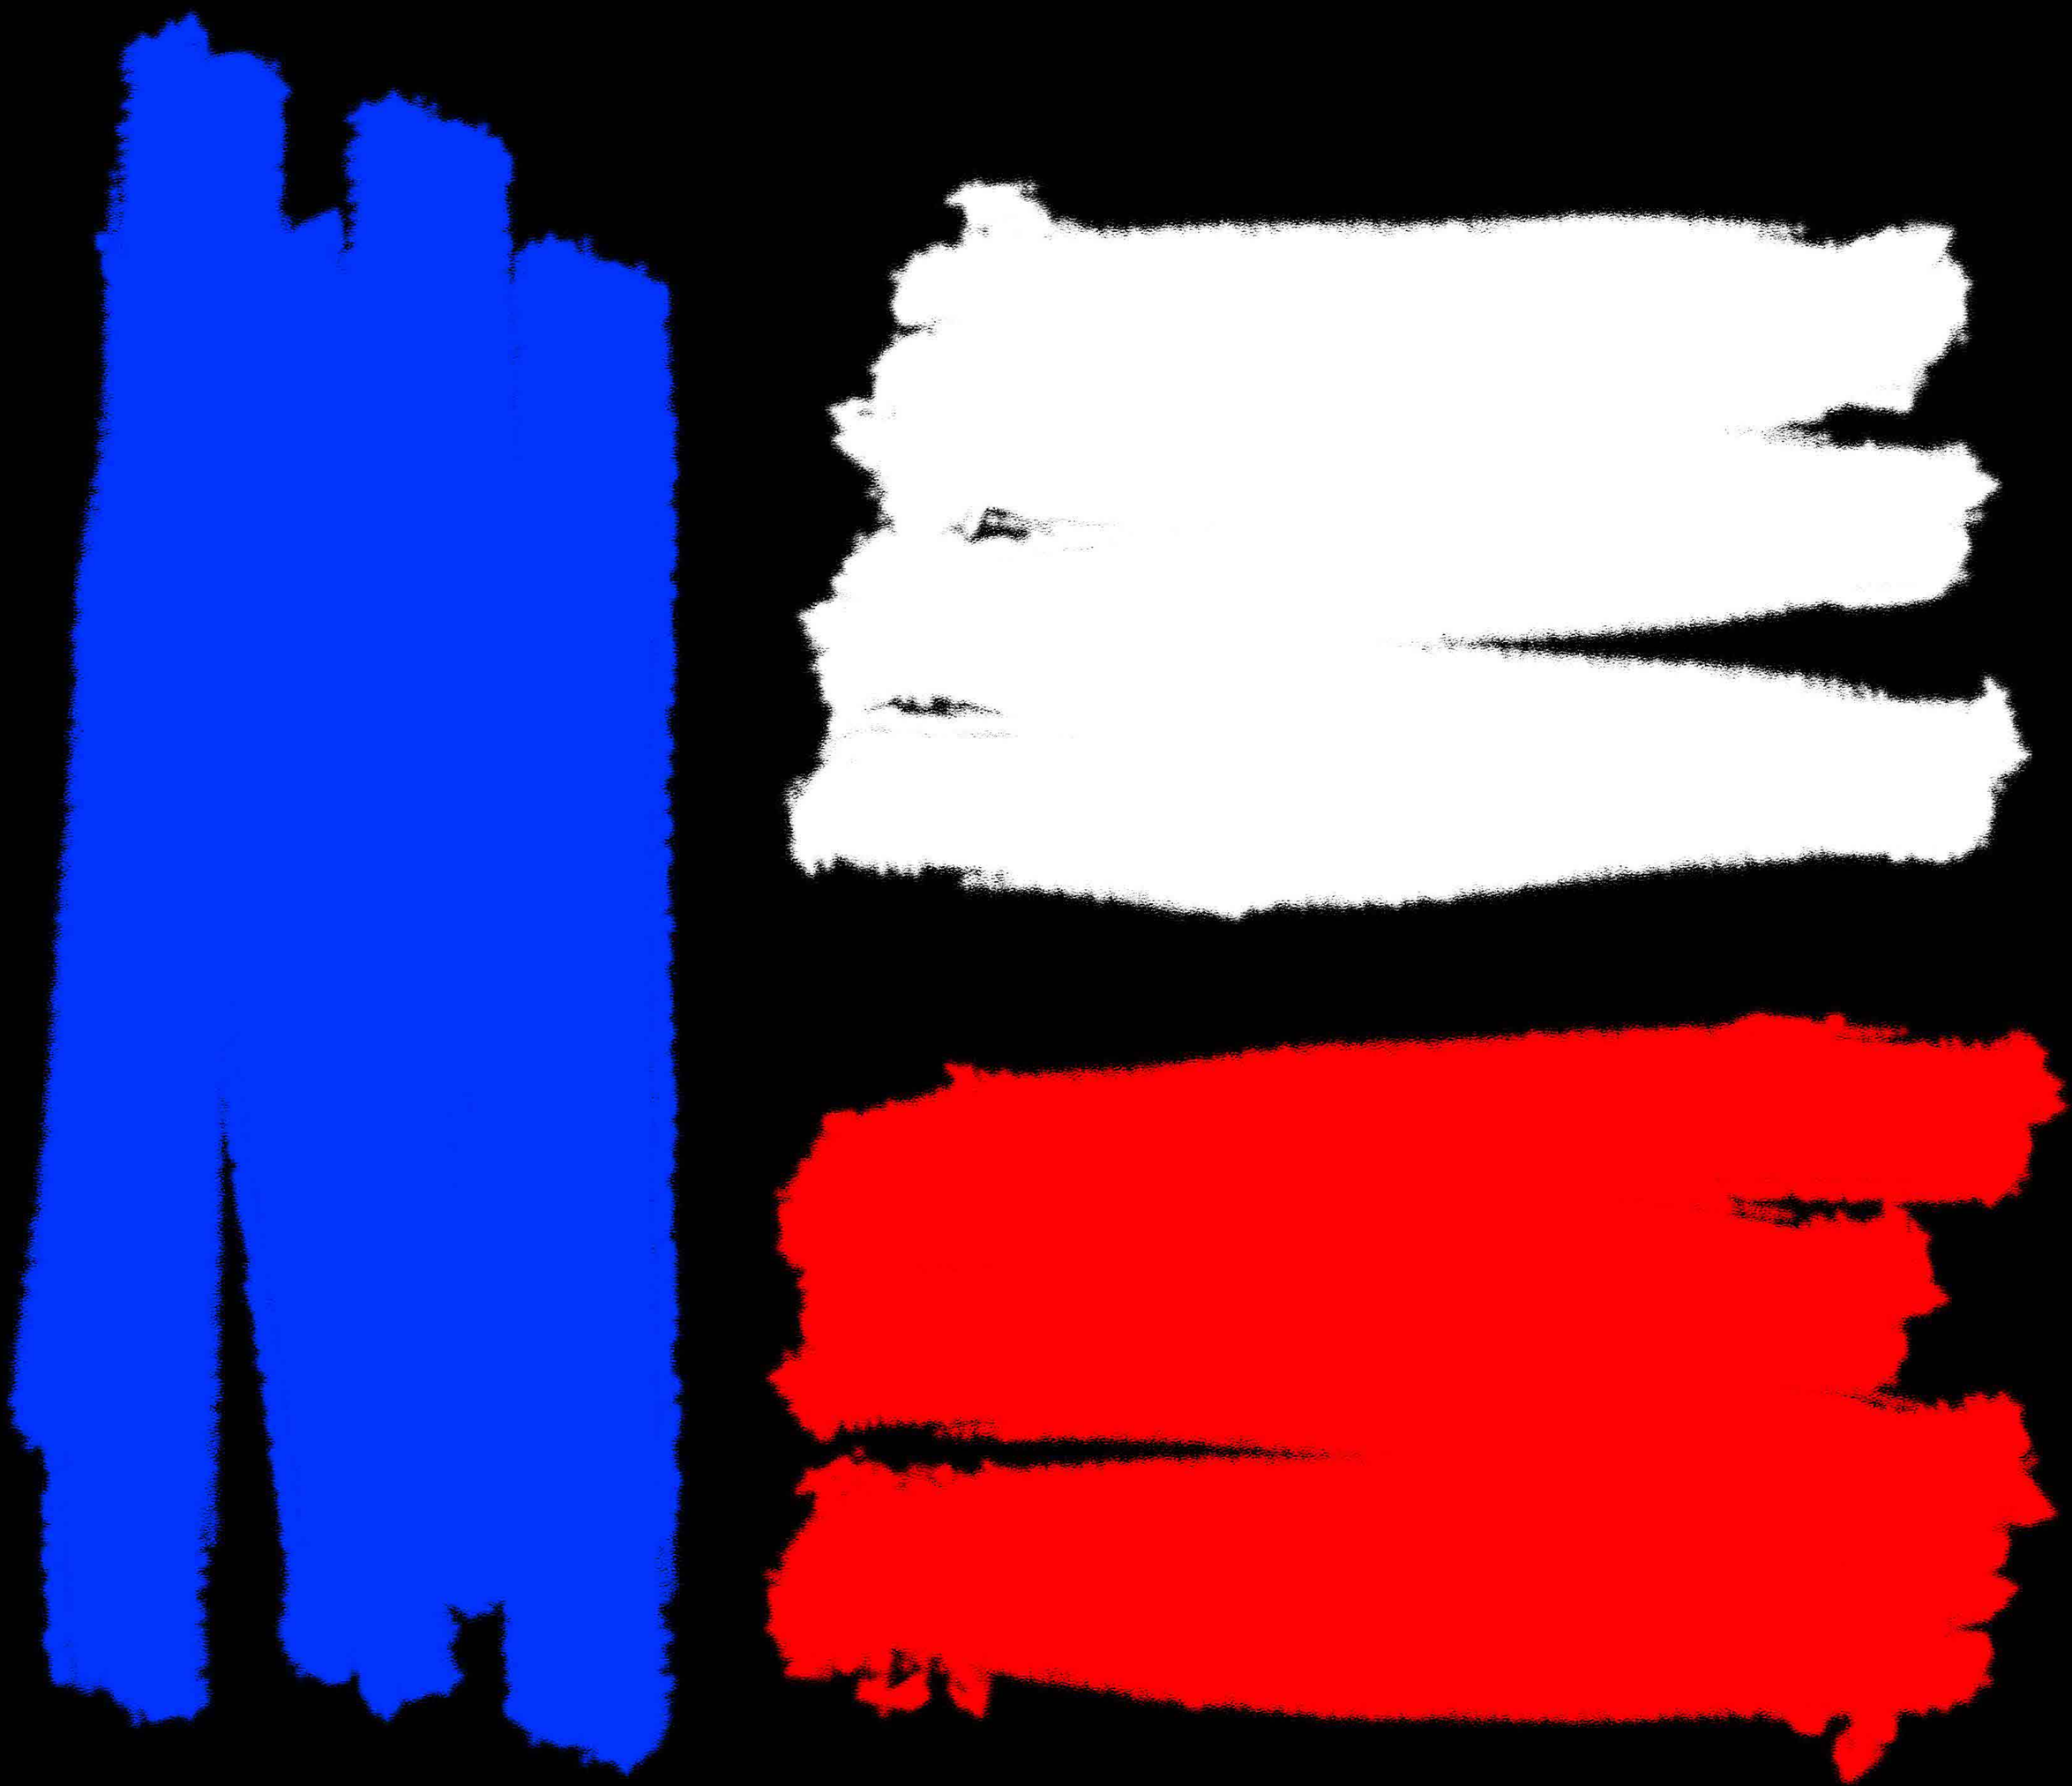
F16 at 1/125.

TEXAS

Strutting up El Passover's main street, I tossed my camera into the air, photographing clouds out loud. My Nikon fell to earth, I know not where.

You may ask yourself why this meandering preamble. In the early 1960s Robert Benton, the celebrated Academy Award winning autuer, was the art director at ESQUIRE. Mr. Benton was thinking about doing a home boy Texas book and wondered if I'd like to go there and take the photographs.

Hell yes, you bet! Hot dang hootenannie!
Ted Cruz Flip Flops more than a trout out of water.



The book was never realized, and I just REALIZED last week I have a stash of Tex-Mex negatives in my whiz bang bag.

Ready or not, here they come! Duane’s Texas tempest in a teapot treasure trove circa 1964.

Once off the coast of Corpus Christi I saw the Texas fleet all sails fluttering on maneuvers. Ahoy!

Here’s one last thought. While walking on the waters of the Rio Grande whistling Glen Campbell’s Galveston, I drowned.

Why bless your heart!
